"I may be optimistic, but I on not not like for example, that we are obtaining as much impure milk here as is thought by some to be the case; for I use many hundreds of gallons annually or patients, over whose life and habits I have entire control, and I have not I have entire control, and I have not yet seen a case of disease emannting from this class of patients. It is true, of course, that under different conditions, even a good milk supply can be perverted, and deleterious results follow, as often is the case where the people live in unsanitary suroundings and follow un in unsanitary suroundings and dollow un-sanitary methods of life. But on the whole, the milk that the people of this city drink, is generally of a pure charac-ter, and the health conditions here are in general viry good."

Dr. Levy's Plain Words.

Dr. E. C. Levy, city bacteriologist, did not discus the sanitary conditions of the stity in general, but he had some very plain things to say in reply to a paraof Dr. Oppenhimer's paper read before tht Council Monday night. Dr. Oppenhimer discussing the making of re-lease cultures in diphtheria after all clinleal vestiges, of the disease, have dis-peapred, said:

For example, a negro woman Nad diphtheria, and was treated by Dr. Stratton, one of the city physicians, After all visible traces of the disease had vanished, two examinations by the city bacteriologist revealed the presence of germs. The woman was restless under confinment; in fact, only remaining indoors when she expected the doctor; and the people who had employed her protested that she was kept in quarantine after her health was restored. I decided, therfore, to test the efficacy of the department. I accordingly instructed Dr. Stratton to mop out his own thorat and send the mop to the city bacteriologist. The next day there came a card say-The next day there came a card say-ing the patient was worse! This is only to bring out the point that doc-tors convey disease as well as other people, and consistency would demand a bacteriological examination of each doctor's throat every time he came in contact with a case of diphtheria.

He Charges Deception. Referring to this statement Dr. Levy

said:
"I did not state that 'the patient was worse,' but there is no doubt at all about my reporting that diphtheria bacilli were my reporting that diphtheria bacilli were present in each of the several cultures sent me by Dr. Stratton, and they were there. Within a few days it came to my knowledge that Dr. Stratton claimed that the last of these swabs was from his own throat, and not from the throat of his patient. I at once went to see Dr. Oppenhimer for the purpose of telling him of this willful deception on the curt of one of the city physicians. Dr. Garcin Raymond, you remember that when Dr only proved what I had repeatedly co tended, namely, that doctors often car-ried the germs of disease from one case Dr. Garcin agreed that this to another.' Dr. Garcin agreed that this was Dr. Oppenhimer's interpretation, neither of them being at all disposed to doubt, as, indeed, I know neither is now willing to do openly, the accuracy of my findings. They both treated it as a good joke on Dr. Stratton.

"Only on hearing Dr. Oppenhimer's reply to the investigating committee has night did I realize that he himself was at the bottom of this deliberate conspiracy to belittle the value of bacteriological work in general and my own ability in ork in general and my own ability in re that culture really did come from? where that culture really did come from? Are we to believe Dr. Stratton's verbal statement to Dr. Oppenhimer that he took this swab from his own throat or his written statement, which accompanied the culture that he had gotten it from the throat of the negro weman? I confess that Dr. Stratton and Dr. Oppenhimer must decide this delicate point of honor between them, wille I myself, in honor between them, while I myself, in the face of their self-confessed decep-tion, must honestly admit that I do not feel called upon to believe either of them

"Dr. Oppenhimer was guilty of a double co-laborers and thereafter in disclaiming his part in it, except as an accessory after the fact, until I aroused his animosity by admitting, when directly asked by him, that I had given the investigating committee some advice in the mere arrangement of their actual findings.

"There is a scientific aspect to the whole thing, which I will be glad to explain to anyone who really wishes to understand it, but which I can no longer hope to show to the president of the Board of Health, who, after apparently understanding the true significance of this incident, later on, for personal reasons, deliberately seeks to use it against me."

"So, doctor," asked the reporter, "physical and a significance of the significance of the significance of this incident, later on, for personal reasons, deliberately seeks to use it against me."

'So, doctor," asked the reporter, "phy-

"So, doctor," asked the reporter, "physicians who are attending cases of diphtheria may carry the germs in their own threats?"
"Certainly," replied Dr Levy, "this is a well recognized fact, and in this special case my examination simply showed that Dr. Stratton's mouth was as great a menace to this community as was the mouth of the negro woman whom he was attending."

Governor Pardee was present to-day for the first time at the meeting of the reconstruction committee and was questioned as to his intention concerning the continuance of legal holidays. In order to avoid official compilections and to prevent individual distress, the Governor ever since April 18th, has been daily declaring each succeeding date a logal holiday, thus preventing the foreclosure of morigages and postponing the payments of other obligations that might otherwise fail due. The banks of the interior were fearful that a sudden cessation of his proclamation might cause a panic and it was on their behalf that Governor Pardee announced that he would give notice before the close of the holiday period.

Consul at Canton Reports That Imports Show Great Decrease.

(By Associated Press.)
PEKIN, May 8.—The statements to the effect that there is apprehension in the effect that there is appreciation in the United States that the boycott of American goods growing has caused surprise here. All the information obtainable shows that the movement is waning. The Chinese customs report 2-1905 just issued, shows, that the American imports were 7,000,000 tacls, compared with 29,000,000 in 1904. It appears that the importers made enormous speculative purchases early in the year, chiefly in anticipation of war demands and decrease in imports would be natural under any circumstances until these atocks are distributed. The report says that the result of the boycott is not what had been expected. Much suspicion and hostility were greated but the general verdict is that not much injury has been done to American manufactures or merchants. The final effect of the boycott, however, cannot be judged until the close of another year, or even later. Only the immediate results are visible.

In consequence of climatic fever, war and consequence of climatic fever, war and boycot, conditions combined, there is a larger proportion of imports than usua in the first hands. The imports of Ameri-can cotton increased from 700,000 to 12, 37,000 pieces, and flour about the same in can cotton increased from 100,000 to 12, 165,000 pieces, and four about the same, 1969, but the Australian trade is growing.
